Fiona Ellwood

BEM

Brief Biog: Dental Academic and former Dental Nurse I have a keen interest in academic work and am involved in education, having studied education to master's level. I am a trained and practicing mentor and mental health first aider and a member of the Human Factors Advisory Board. I am a current student of PG Dental Law & Ethics and on a Doctorate pathway. I am part of a number of stakeholder groups across the profession and a keynote speaker and author. I hold 2 posts with the GDC, I am the founder of the SBDN and I am involved with RCS Edinburgh. I have been qualified 35 years. I currently hold educational posts and as a trustee of Dentaaid with a clinical capability. My BA dissertation talks to mentoring in adult learners returning to learning, my M.Ed dissertation talks to leadership as a mechanism of change in the dental landscape. I have been awarded 3 Fellowships and recognised in the Queens Honours

Lecture title: Civility in difficult times: When red mist descends

Abstract: This session is designed to create awareness of civility V incivility and the impact and spiraling effect it can have in the workplace and beyond and help design strategies to prevent such behaviors.
